SUMMER 2018

ART, CAFÉ, SHOP, EVENTS

ROSE WYLIE HISTORY PAINTING

9 JUN - 15 SEP

Rose Wylie is best known for creating colourful, large-scale, figurative paintings that are intelligent, funny, and quietly political. These are usually made from memory and draw on a wide range of cultural references from history, fashion and cinema, to mythology, sport and literature. The thread linking these fields is her interest in how images evolve and accumulate meaning - becoming familiar, iconic and part of the narrative of popular culture and wider history.

The large-scale paintings at Newlyn Art Gallery include three recent works inspired by the Pilgrims' voyage aboard the Mayflower, which had a final landing at Newlyn to take on fresh water before sailing to America in 1620. In the lower gallery we present Ben Rivers' film What Means Something (2015) which reflects on his friendship with Rose, her painting and the artistic processes they have in common.

At The Exchange, paintings inspired by celebrities and Quentin Tarantino films will hang alongside more personal memories including her experience of the Blitz during the Second World War, as well as a selection of works on paper that reveal her working process.

Generously sponsored by Classic Cottages.

Rose Wylie: History Painting is a Plymouth Arts Centre and Plymouth College of Art exhibition. At Newlyn Art Gallery & The Exchange it is curated by Ben Borthwick.

Family Think & Do available at both galleries during summer school holidays, free.

JANET CARDIFF FORTY PART MOTET

25 MAY - 27 AUG

Janet Cardiff's internationally acclaimed sound installation Forty Part Motet (2001) is at Richmond Chapel, a former Wesleyan Chapel and Grade II listed building in Penzance. Cardiff has reworked 16th-century composer Thomas Tallis's choral masterpiece Spem in alium nunquam habui by recording 40 individual male voices (bass, baritone, alto, tenor and child soprano) and playing each individual voice through its own speaker. The visitor can move amongst the 40 speakers to listen to single voices, or be immersed in the overall complexity of the choral ensemble.

A Groundwork exhibition presented by Newlyn Art Gallery & The Exchange. Groundwork is a season of international contemporary art in Cornwall this summer. www.groundwork.art

Opening Event: Sun 27 May, 14.00 - 16.00
Join us at Richmond Chapel for a cream tea.
Free, all welcome.
